Public Input Requested for Wilson Multimodal Corridor Study Project

September 24, 2020, Jackson, Wyo. – Teton County, in partnership with the Wyoming Department of Transportation (WYDOT), the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA), and the community of Wilson, is seeking input from the public during a virtual open house focused on improving safety for motorists and non-motorist in Wilson, on, and adjacent to, Wyoming Highway 22.

The Wilson Multimodal Corridor Study Project will look at developing a long-range transportation plan that will accommodate motorists, transit users, bicyclists, and pedestrians in a manner that fits within the desired character of the community, from approximately Wenzel Lane to Elliott Cemetery Road.

The transportation plan will consider a variety of improvements, such as vehicular capacity and safety, access management, pathway development, safe routes to school, pedestrian crossings, and corridor aesthetics.

Members of the community can help the planning team identify and craft potential transportation improvements on Wyoming Highway 22, in and around Wilson, during a virtual open house that will be available online from Thursday, September 24, 2020 through Thursday, October 8, 2020 at <https://wilson.altaplanning.cloud/>. The public will have access to a series of graphics that describe potential alternatives with the opportunity to provide feedback on each design.

The public is encouraged to visit the Wilson Multimodal Study website <https://www.tetoncountywy.gov/1976/Wilson-Corridor-Study> to learn more about the project and to provide feedback on best solutions for improving multi-modal transportation in the Wilson area by October 8, 2020 at 5:00 p.m. (MT).

The Wilson Multimodal Corridor Study Project was approved by the Teton County Board of County Commissioners in April 2019.
